Help Your Moulters Moul

THINK of the amount of hen energy, vitality and red blood required to grow a thousand feathers—the average plumage! A moulting hen needs good health—good appetite—good digestion.

Dr. Hess Poultry Pan-a-ce-a

helps poultry through the moult and starts pullets and moulting hens to laying. It contains tonics for the appetite, tonics to aid digestion. It tones up the dormant egg organs. It contains iron that gives a moulting hen rich, red blood and a red comb. No disease where Pan-a-ce-a is fed. By all means feed your moulting hens Dr. Hess Poultry Pan-a-ce-a.

WESTERLY

It is generally understood that at the annual meeting of the Westerly fire district, Dec. 1, recommendation will be made for the purchase of a triple combination fire apparatus, that is, a combined pumping machine and chemical and hose wagon, such as has been in service at Watch Hill since the season following the burning of the Watch Hill house. This pump can be operated any place where there is water, whether it be brook or well, and it is ready for immediate active service—a fire department in itself. The two steam fire engines are unfit for service, and there is no fire protection, provided the water system, or any part thereof, should happen to go wrong. The combination apparatus would be of great value in sections where there is low water pressure, or no pressure. Aside from pumping, a standard apparatus has speed, stability and equipment far superior to the present motor-driven apparatus.

Should the district decide to have a modern standard fire apparatus, the purchase ought not to be made hurriedly, nor the committee be swayed by the talk of persons interested in this or that apparatus, and perhaps for a reason. There should be no repetition of mistakes in the purchase of fire apparatus. If the district is to have a modern apparatus the committee selected to make the purchase should be required to visit cities where modern apparatus have been long in use and get authoritative information first hand as to general efficiency. This could be done without going outside the state.

The two steamers and one of the present motor apparatus might be traded in and reduce the cost of the modern apparatus to the district. If apparatus is purchased, one of the present must be disposed of to make way for the new in the Central fire house.

Judge Arthur P. Sumner of the superior court, in session at Kingston, has appointed William Segar, George W. Woodward and Oliver P. Crandall, all of Westerly, a commission to fix valuation on lands taken by the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad company for railroad purposes. The railroad company recommended as the commissioners Messrs. Segar and Woodward and Everett A. Kingsley. The court substituted Oliver P. Crandall, recommended by Judge Edward M. Burke, for Mr. Kingsley. Other names submitted for commission were John J. Dunn, William A. McSoley and Joseph T. Murphy.

The lands under consideration are located along the line of the railroad tracks in the town of Westerly and a part of what was known as the Chapman farm, near Burden's point. The owners are Frank Falcone and Luigi Luzzi. The land will be utilized in the layout of an additional siding between Bradford and Westerly, and for practically the whole distance.

Charles Bailey, alias "Shang" Bailey, when indicted for the murder of his brother Edgar, told the court that he had no money and asked that counsel be assigned him by the state, on the ground that he had no money. When arrested in Maine he had $148 in his possession, and he was reminded of that fact. He wanted his aged mother to have this money and stated it was money loaned him by his mother.

The sheriff told the court this statement was not true, that the mother had denied that her son Charles owed her money. Thereupon the court declined to assign counsel at the expense of the state and added that he engaged counsel on his own account and be prepared for trial when the court convenes at Westerly next Monday.

Several diphtheria cases are reported, and the health department had school nurse are busy in an effort to discover the symptoms and take precautions to prevent the spread of the disease. There have been isolated cases for several weeks and steps taken to prevent contagion insofar as is possible under the present health system of the town. It was stated Tuesday that seven cases had been discovered in one room of the Park avenue school and the room has been ordered closed for fumigation.

All physicians are called to treat cases as they are reported and to treat cases as they are reported and to treat cases as they are reported.

At the session of Westerly probate court Tuesday afternoon Judge Edward M. Burke presided. Edith E. Pendleton, mother of deceased, was confirmed as executrix of the estate of James Everett Pendleton (who died Oct. 21, 1920).

The will had been admitted to probate. All his estate, real and personal, is bequeathed to his daughter, Annie Isabelle Pendleton, and the executrix is named as guardian of the person and estate of the sole beneficiary under the will until she attains her majority. The will provides that under no circumstances shall the daughter have anything to do with the divorced wife of the testator. Bonds were fixed at $400 with surety.

The first account of Dwight R. Stillman as guardian of the estate of Ronald V. Stillman, a minor resident in Daytona, Fla., was received for record and approved.

The will of William Culley, who died Sept. 26, 1920, was submitted for probate. A bequest of $250 is made to Grace Methodist church, some household effects to his three daughters, $50 each to his daughters, $5 to each of three sons, $50 to each of two grandchildren. All the rest and residue of the estate is given to his widow, Catherine Cole Culley. Frank E. C. Walton was named as executor. Attorney Roche suggested the substitution of the widow, Samuel Culley, as executor. The court confirmed as executor. Bonds $2,500 with surety. Eugene B. Pendleton was appointed appraiser.

Louis Luzzi was appointed administrator of the estate of James A. Coppelli. Bonds $2,500. Joseph Gervasi, appraiser.

The first and final account of the administrator of the estate of Margaret Bedford was received, examined and continued until the expiration of the one-year period of limitation, first Tuesday in April, 1921.

The estate of Bowen A. Sweet, a general release from heirs to the executor of the will was received for record.

The tercentenary of the Pilgrimage landing will be observed in Westerly by a special public program under the joint auspices of the Westerly Historical society and the Westerly Board of Trade in the town hall this (Wednesday) evening. Addresses will be made by Rev. J. Percival Hugst, D. D., of Brooklyn and P. Whitwell Wilson, New York representative of the London News and former member of parliament. Rev. Samuel M. Lathart will preside. Vocal selections will be given by the Ashaway trio, and there will also be congregational singing.

WINS CONTROVERSY WITH PRES. WILSON

Senator Spencer has just emerged victor in a protracted veracity contest with the President of the United States. It was Senator Spencer's charge that President Wilson had promised the Serbians and Roumanian delegates at the Paris Peace Conference that the United States would use military and naval force to preserve the political independence and territorial integrity of these two nations in the event of assault from the greater powers which were wrong from the President an unequalled denial. Impartial investigation of the facts of the matter have disclosed that Senator Spencer was right and the President was wrong in the controversy.
